26 October - 28 January 2007

Michael Flynn is a sculptor whose intense figurative expressions are used to create powerful narratives. His subjects are predominantly based on the naked human figure, together with the world of raucous animals.

Sexually aggressive, both are drawn with a physical energy that exudes an unsettling subversive quality. A former painter, his sculptures, that often comment on issues of gender, are made in ceramic with exemplary skill.

Based in Cardiff, Michael Flynn has earned an international reputation for his animated work, which makes him one of Wales' leading artists.
Curated by Ralph Turner.
